Executive summary

Background
George Mason University (GMU) contracts with LT Services Inc. (LT Services) to provide janitorial services; this contract is executed by LT Services personnel as well as personnel from a group of 12 subcontractors. Since July of 2019, certain LT Services personnel, subcontractor personnel, and the Service Employees International Union 32 (SEIU32) have publicly alleged improper conduct regarding the labor practices of LT Services and its subcontractors.

Objectives
GMU engaged Baker Tilly to perform an independent Labor Practices and Compliance Audit over LT Services and its subcontractors during the time period of 7/1/2019 to 2/28/2021. The objectives of this audit were to:
- Audit LT Services and its subcontractors for compliance with certain provisions of the contract established with GMU
- Audit LT Services and its subcontractors for compliance with certain state and federal laws
- Incorporate known allegations against LT Services and its subcontractors into audit procedures to attempt to determine if claims are substantiated through testing

Scope
Based upon the public allegations made by personnel of LT Services and its subcontractors, Baker Tilly, in agreement with GMU, defined the scope of the audit to determine if these allegations could be substantiated through testing. Additionally, Baker Tilly and GMU identified specific provisions within the contract for compliance testing. The following areas were considered in scope and were reviewed as part of the audit:
- LT Services and Subcontractor Compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act
- LT Services and Subcontractor Compliance with GMU's Health and Safety Requirements
- LT Services and Subcontractor Compliance with certain State and Federal Laws
- LT Services Compliance with Wage Theft Laws
- LT Services Compliance with the National Labor Relations Act

Conclusion
LT Services
Audit procedures completed over LT Services indicated no significant or pervasive non-compliance with contract provisions or state and federal laws. Audit procedures performed over LT Services revealed two observations:
- Two of 15 payments made by LT Services to subcontractors were made late (both 59 days after the invoice date or service date; compared to our estimated reasonable expectation set at 45 days)
- Two of 11 personnel interviewed (one personnel interviewed quit prior to 2020) indicated that they had not received formal training on health and safety requirements within the prior year
Baker Tilly was able to complete all planned audit procedures for LT Services with one exception. Four of the 15 personnel selected for interviews separated from LT Services during the audit period or shortly after. Baker Tilly was not able to get in contact with three of the four individuals despite making at least three attempts to call each individual directly.

Baker Tilly was unable to conclude on the existence of any significant or pervasive non-compliance with contract provisions or state and federal laws due to the lack of documentation received and the lack of responses received for attempted interviews.

Subcontractors

Baker Tilly was not able to complete all audit procedures for nine of ten subcontractors sampled as nine sampled subcontractors were not able to provide the necessary documentation (e.g., payroll records and/or personnel timesheet records) to execute our planned audit procedures. As such, Baker Tilly was unable to complete the objectives of the audit for these subcontractors.

Baker Tilly selected 37 total personnel (current and terminated) for interviews across the ten subcontractors and was able to contact and perform interviews with six of the 37 sampled personnel. Baker Tilly was unable to contact the remaining 31 personnel. For personnel in which contact information was received, Baker Tilly attempted to contact each of the personnel at least three times. Baker Tilly was unable to obtain a listing of personnel from two of the ten subcontractors and thus was not able to select a sample of personnel for interviews from those subcontractors. All responses received by Baker Tilly as part of the interview process did not substantiate any of the known allegations.

Audit procedures completed over one of the ten subcontractors indicated the following:

- Four of 17 personnel tested as part of compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act had differences between time card hours recorded and hours recorded in the payroll records. Three of the four personnel had more hours noted per the payroll records than what was noted per the time card detail. One of the four personnel had less hours noted per the payroll records than what was noted per the time card detail.
- Two of three personnel interviewed indicated that they had not received formal training on health and safety requirements within the prior year.
- Based upon the review of documentation received and interviews performed with three personnel, Baker Tilly noted personnel may be classified as independent contractors but appear to be working as employees.
Background and objectives

George Mason University (GMU) contracts with LT Services Inc. (LT Services) to provide janitorial services to its 73 buildings in Northern Virginia. LT Services provides janitorial services for various government and commercial facilities. A portion of this contract is performed by LT Services personnel directly, and a portion is performed by a group of 12 subcontractors.

Since July of 2019, certain LT Services personnel, subcontractor personnel, and the Service Employees International Union 32 (SEIU32) have publicly alleged improper conduct regarding the labor practices of LT Services and its subcontractors. The specific allegations made are as follows:

1. SEIU32 claimed that LT Services’ payments to subcontractors were not made in a timely manner.
2. SEIU32 claimed that LT Services’ subcontractors were incorrectly classifying personnel as contractors to avoid paying benefits that would be received as employees.
3. Subcontractor personnel claimed they were being paid once a month and repeatedly receiving bad checks or less than what they were owed.
4. Subcontractor personnel and an LT Service personnel claimed that cleaners were not provided with the proper equipment and training to be free from recognized hazards in their working environment.
5. SEIU32 filed a formal charge alleging that an LT Services subcontractor retaliated against personnel by interrogating about protected union activity, threatening to retaliate against for participation in union activity, and surveilling and or giving the impression of surveillance.
6. SEIU32 filed a formal charge alleging that an LT Services subcontractor sabotaged work areas and intimidated personnel including false accusations of theft (Two additional charges were initially filed but subsequently withdrawn).
7. SEIU32 claimed that LT Services wrongly fired two personnel performing cleaning services at GMU.

GMU engaged Baker Tilly to perform an independent Labor Practices and Compliance Audit over LT Services and its subcontractors for compliance with the contract established with GMU, as well as compliance with certain federal and state laws during the time period of 7/1/2019 to 2/28/2021. The objective of this review is to provide GMU insight into the practices of LT Services and its subcontractors and to determine if LT Services and its subcontractors were in compliance with certain specific policies established by GMU as well as certain state and federal laws. Additionally, the audit was designed to review known allegations against LT Services and its subcontractors and to determine if these allegations could be substantiated.

Scope and approach

Baker Tilly developed audit procedures to verify the following:

- Compliance with FLSA wage payment provisions and overtime provisions
  - 29 CFR part 531 and part 778
- Compliance with GMU policies
  - COVID-19 public health and safety requirements
- Compliance with state and federal laws
Baker Tilly requested the following documentation from LT Services and a sample of ten subcontractors for detailed audit procedures:

- Policies and procedures outlining all time and attendance requirements
- Policies and procedures outlining all health, safety, and training requirements
- Listing of all personnel (contractors, full time, part time) who worked at GMU during the audit period
  - 12 current personnel sampled from LT Services
  - 22 current personnel sampled from subcontractors
- Listing of all personnel (contractors, full time, part time) who have separated (voluntarily and involuntarily) during the audit period
  - Three separated personnel sampled from LT Services
  - 15 separated personnel sampled from subcontractors
- Listing of all complaints filed by personnel (contractors, full time, part time) during the audit period
  - No complaints noted for LT Services
  - No complaints noted for subcontractors
- Payroll registers for a sample of pay periods
  - Five pay periods sampled for LT Services
  - One pay period per subcontractor sampled totaling ten across all subcontractors
- Personnel timecards or other records for the payroll periods sampled
- Banking records including payments made for the payroll periods sampled
- Personnel contact information
  - 15 personnel sampled for LT Services including existing and terminated personnel
  - 37 total personnel sampled from subcontractors including existing and terminated personnel
- Documentation supporting the classification of personnel as employees or contractors
- Documentation supporting personnel terminations (voluntary and involuntary)
  - Three personnel sampled from LT Services
  - 15 personnel sampled from subcontractors

The following additional documentation was requested from LT Services for detailed audit procedures:

- Evidence of all required personnel rights communications
- Listing of all subcontractors of LT Services who have worked at GMU during the audit period
  - Ten subcontractors sampled for testing
- Transaction listing showing payments to sampled subcontractors during the audit period
Baker Tilly also attempted to perform interviews with a sample of 15 personnel from LT Services and a sample of 37 personnel from the ten subcontractors. Baker Tilly completed interviews with 12 personnel from LT Services and 6 personnel from subcontractors. As part of the interview process Baker Tilly discussed the following topics to gain additional insights into the practices of LT Services and its subcontractors:

- Health and Safety requirements including formal training and communications around PPE and other safety requirements
- Understanding of COVID-19 policies and procedures of both their employer and GMU
- Understanding of reason for termination (voluntary and involuntary) including if retaliation was possible (terminated personnel only)
- Complaints filed including understanding of the process for submitting a complaint and resolution of complaints if applicable
- Policies and procedures for recording time
- Working arrangement with employer and working environment

Baker Tilly summarized observations and recommendations by entity and by testing area. Refer to Work Performed, Observations and Recommendations section starting on page nine of the report for the detailed summary.

Conclusion

Baker Tilly was able to complete all audit procedures over LT Services with one exception:

- Four of the 15 LT Services personnel selected for interviews separated from LT Services during the audit period or shortly after. Baker Tilly was not able to get in contact with three of the personnel despite making at least three attempts to call each individual directly. Baker Tilly was able to perform an interview with one of the personnel who had quit during the audit period.

Audit procedures performed over LT Services revealed two observations:

- Two of 15 payments made by LT Services to subcontractors were made late (both 59 days after the invoice date or service date; compared to our estimated reasonable expectation set at 45 days)
- Two of 11 personnel interviewed (1 personnel interviewed quit prior to 2020) indicated that they had not received formal training on health and safety requirements within the prior year

Baker Tilly was not able to complete all audit procedures over nine of ten subcontractors sampled. Nine of ten sampled subcontractors were not able to provide the necessary documentation (e.g., payroll records and/or personnel timesheet records) to execute our planned audit procedures. As such, Baker Tilly was unable to complete the objectives of the audit for these subcontractors.
Baker Tilly spoke directly with eight of the ten subcontractors selected for testing. Baker Tilly was unable to directly contact two of the ten subcontractors. During discussions with the eight subcontractors Baker Tilly confirmed the following:

- Six of the eight subcontractors do not have payroll records for the sampled payroll period
- One of the eight subcontractors indicated that they have payroll records; however, despite following up with subcontractor at least three times, Baker Tilly was unable to obtain these records
- One of the eight subcontractors indicated that they did not have banking records
- Six of the eight subcontractors indicated that they do not have personnel timekeeping records

Baker Tilly selected a sample of 37 subcontractor personnel (current and terminated) to perform interviews. Baker Tilly was unable to perform interviews for 31 of the 37 personnel selected for interviews. Below is a summary of why no interview was performed for the personnel:

- Contact information was not provided to Baker Tilly for 21 of the personnel despite Baker Tilly attempting to follow up and obtain the information at least three times
- Baker Tilly either received incorrect contact information or their contact information changed subsequent to termination (voluntary and involuntary) for two of the personnel
- Baker Tilly provided voicemails to four personnel; however, never received a response despite following up with personnel at least three times; All voicemails were provided in the personnel’s primary language as indicated by the subcontractor
- Baker Tilly contacted one personnel who requested to call back another time however a call back was not received; Baker Tilly attempted to follow up with the personnel
- Baker Tilly was unable to leave a voicemail for three of the personnel as their mailbox was noted as full or not set up, thus a message could not be provided

Audit procedures completed over one of the ten subcontractors indicated the following:

- Four of 17 personnel tested had differences between time card hours recorded and hours recorded in the payroll records. Three of the four personnel had more hours noted per the payroll records than what was noted per the time card detail. One of the four personnel had less hours noted per the payroll records than what was noted per the time card detail.
- Two of three personnel interviewed indicated that they had not received formal training on health and safety requirements within the prior year.
- Based upon the review of documentation received and interviews performed with three personnel, Baker Tilly noted personnel may be classified as independent contractors but appear to be working as employees.

As a result of the items noted above, Baker Tilly has summarized all procedures performed as well as those that have not been performed within the following pages of the report.

1 One of the subcontractors selected during the audit period was dissolved as of 12/31/2020. A new subcontractor company was created effective 1/1/2021 and all personnel from the dissolved company were hired to continue working for the new company. Baker Tilly considered both companies as one sample for testing. Baker Tilly was unable to speak directly with this subcontractor due to medical circumstances. Additionally, Baker Tilly was unable to contact one other subcontractor despite multiple attempts.
Work Performed, Observations and Recommendations

The matrices below outline the relevant compliance requirements that LT Services and its subcontractors must adhere to; along with the testing procedures performed by Baker Tilly, and any related observations and recommendations identified.

| Contractor Compliance with Specific George Mason Policies | 2.1: Verify that LT Services is complying with George Mason's COVID-19 Public Health and Safety Requirements. | - Obtained a copy of LT Services written respiratory protection program.
- Obtained a copy of all other LT Services health and safety related policy and procedure documents.
- Reviewed the written program requirements to verify if they require all contractors and subcontractors who serve on any university campus to adhere to the following:
  o Adherence to University Guidelines
  o Daily Self Screening
  o Isolation and Quarantine
  o Reporting to the University
  o Personnel Education and Training
  o Modifications to Work Locations
- Interviewed a sample of LT Services personnel who have worked on any GMU campus during the audit period (adjusted for COVID-19 policy implementation timeframe) to inquire if the above requirements were being enforced and followed. | None | None |
| | 2.2: Verify that personnel have been trained on health and safety requirements including the proper use of protective equipment. | - Obtained a copy of LT Services' training material used to educate personnel on the use of protective equipment.
- Verified if the training materials address key points of the respiratory protection program.
- Determined which LT Services personnel require training and the required cadence of training through inquiry with LT Services.
- Interviewed 11 LT Services personnel who have worked on any GMU campus during the audit period (adjusted for COVID-19 implementation timeframe) to inquire if personnel were being properly trained on policies and use of equipment. | Baker Tilly noted per discussion with LT Services that personnel completion of annual training is tracked and monitored for new hires only and is not formally documented for completion beyond the new hire process. As such, Baker Tilly relied upon the responses of personnel during interviews to determine if training had been completed during 2020. Additionally, per interviews performed with LT Services personnel, Baker Tilly noted that two out of 11 personnel indicated that they had not received training during 2020 on health and safety requirements. | LT Services should ensure that all personnel receive training on health and safety requirements at least annually. Additionally, LT Services should consider implementing a tracking system to monitor which personnel have or have not completed necessary trainings during the year. |

- For the samples selected, obtained documentation supporting the date of payment including bank statement support and check copies.
- Reviewed the support received to verify that payments made to subcontractors were made in a timely manner. | Baker Tilly noted per review of all documentation received that two of the payments provided to one subcontractor did not appear to be made in a timely manner. Baker Tilly noted that payment was made 59 days after the date of the invoice for both samples. | LT Services should ensure that all subcontractors are paid in a timely manner given all circumstances within the contract agreement are met. LT Services should ensure that all invoices received by subcontractors are time stamped to indicate the date of receipt. This will help verify any invoices that are received well after the invoice date are not considered untimely if paid within a reasonable time frame after receipt. |

Baker Tilly noted one of the personnel was paid a flat rate and thus did not have a time card available and one personnel was on vacation and thus did not have the documentation required.
- Baker Tilly reviewed timecards to determine which personnel worked overtime hours. Baker Tilly noted that all 17 employees were considered contractors by the subcontractor; thus, they are not paid overtime. All hours noted per the time card were considered regular time, thus time was considered recorded accurately despite the personnel working more than 40 hours in a 7 day stretch per the time records.
